32. ALTERNATIVE POWER SUPPLY

32.1 General

The Body Corporate permits installation of various types of alternative power supply subject to full compliance with specific requirements by owners, residents, and trustees of the respective bodies corporate.

Description of the various types of alternative power supply options that are permitted:

- Gas installation for gas stove / hob.
- Uninterruptable Power Supply (UPS) - Provides uninterruptable back-up power for specific items plugged into the UPS when supply from the power electricity supply grid fails, typically for critical appliances. This power will last for a limited time period, depending on the power consumption and the storage capacity (batteries). UPS is ordinarily used to temporarily power critical loads until the supply from the supply grid is restored. In short, a basic system which will provide limited power for low load demand appliances for a few hours.
- Inverter (Silent) Portable Generators - Can be used to generate power during power outages. The generated power will be at the output of the power output rating of the generator and power will be generated as long as the generator can remain operating (fuel dependent). Dependent on the generator's output some domestic appliances can be powered. The overriding consideration when using a generator would be the noise emitted, therefore, a very low noise level, expressed in decibels, is an imperative. Generally speaking, the quietest generators have ratings under 60 decibels. Decibel levels are generally measured at 7 meters away from the unit.
- Geysers Heat Pump - A heat pump works like an inverse air conditioner. It takes heat particles from the atmosphere, compresses them, pumps them into the geyser and circulates the water around.
- Photo voltaic (PV) panels Solar Water Geysers – (direct system only) - Solar water geysers rely on warm water rising, better known as convection. The direct system, is where the water to be used in the household (hot water) circulates through the solar collector panels, transferring solar energy into the storage tank of the solar water heater; and
- Photo voltaic (PV) panels for power generation - Solar panels work by absorbing sunlight with photovoltaic cells, generating direct current (DC) energy and then converting it to usable alternating current (AC) energy with the help of inverter technology. AC energy then flows through the home's electrical panel and is distributed accordingly. The components of a home solar power system include, panels, inverter, racking, monitoring system and batteries.

32.2 Alternative Power Supply Rules

32.2.1 Due to safety and insurance risks associated with the storage of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) cylinders and the use of LPG appliances, it is mandatory that such appliances are used strictly in accordance with the prescripts of the product manufacturer and that gas cylinders are stored in terms of prevailing regulations.
